Directions: Circle or highlight each item in the answer bank that you think was true for Texas and the United States as we begin this unit.

The U.S. successfully comes to an acceptable compromise over the expansion of slavery.	Pressure from Great Britain and France causes Texas to abandon slavery.	Texas' economy is largely composed of plantation agriculture using slave labor.
More and more people in Texas come to oppose slavery and call for its abolition within the state.	Sectional division between the North and South over slavery is at an all-time high.	Texas has become even more closely connected with other slave states in the South.
If the South decides to secede, Texas will probably join the Southern states that leave.	The population of Texas steadily decreases as planters flee to other Southern states.	Many Southern states are prepared to separate from the U.S. over the issue of slavery.

The Big Picture Exit Ticket

1. Which statements best describe the significance of Texas' role in the Civil War? Choose THREE correct answers.
  - a. Texas' distance from the majority of the fighting meant that the Texas economy was able to continue uninterrupted, allowing Texas to provide essential support to the Confederate war effort.
  - b. Texan soldiers made up the majority of the Confederate Army in the eastern theater, with most Texas soldiers fighting in significant battles in eastern states like Virginia, Maryland, and Pennsylvania.
  - c. Though the Texas economy was destroyed as a result of the many battles fought on Texas soil, Texans still managed to raise money to contribute to the Confederate war effort, providing nearly  $\frac{1}{4}$  of the funds to supply the Confederate troops.
  - d. Texans were able to get around the Union blockade of Southern ports by moving Texas goods across the Rio Grande and shipping them from Mexican ports.
  - e. Texas provided a safe haven to Southerners fleeing the violence in the rest of the South, and allowed Southern planters a place to bring the enslaved people so they wouldn't seek refuge with the Union army.
