

American Indians in Texas Today: Enrichment Lesson

Unit 1: Natural Texas and Its People

Name:

Date:

Period:

Today, there are three federally recognized<sup>1</sup> American Indian tribes living in Texas. This means that these three tribes have the right and the power to govern themselves. Their tribal governments have an official political relationship with the United States' government. This relationship is similar to an alliance<sup>2</sup> between two countries. They can receive certain rights, benefits, and services from the U.S. government as a result. These three tribes are the Alabama Coushatta, Kickapoo Traditional, and Ysleta del sur Pueblo, also known as the Tigua.

Some tribes that historically inhabited Texas now live in Oklahoma, like the Kiowa and the Comanche. There are also tribes in Texas today that are not federally recognized, like the Atakapa Ishak and the Comanche Panateka.

In order to become federally recognized, a tribe must meet certain criteria<sup>3</sup>. Tribes must be able to prove their history as an Indigenous group in America since before the arrival of European settlers. They can prove this through various types of documentation. This can be difficult, considering many tribes did not keep written records. Many tribes today are actively working toward federal recognition.

In this enrichment activity, you will choose one of the contemporary<sup>4</sup> tribes listed below to research. Record your research in the appropriate place on this worksheet. Be thorough in your responses. You may choose a federally recognized tribe, or a non-federally recognized tribe.
