

Warm-up: Voices of Texas People

Unit 1: Natural Texas and Its People

Name: Date: Period:

Think about something in your life that is significant to you. Maybe it was a big change you experienced, an accomplishment, meeting someone important, or saying a difficult goodbye. Maybe it hasn't happened yet – it could be a dream or goal you have for your life, or even just something you like to think about. Whatever it is, draw a representation of that significant thing in the space to the right. There is no right or wrong way to represent your significant thing, and don't worry about creating fine art!

Warm-up: Voices of Texas People

Unit 1: Natural Texas and Its People

Name: Date: Period:

Think about something in your life that is significant to you. Maybe it was a big change you experienced, an accomplishment, meeting someone important, or saying a difficult goodbye. Maybe it hasn't happened yet – it could be a dream or goal you have for your life, or even just something you like to think about. Whatever it is, draw a representation of that significant thing in the space to the right. There is no right or wrong way to represent your significant thing, and don't worry about creating fine art!

Voices of Texas People Exit Ticket

Now, imagine you are a future person who finds the drawing on the other side of this paper. There is no explanation left with the image. You don't know the person who drew it. What inferences might you make based on the image? (Remember – you didn't draw it! You're a random future person!)

Want to make it more interesting? Switch your drawing with a shoulder partner. Don't ask them about their drawing, and don't tell them about yours. Just write two or three educated guesses you have about what you think their image represents. When you get your drawing back, see what inferences were made.

Voices of Texas People Exit Ticket

Now, imagine you are a future person who finds the drawing on the other side of this paper. There is no explanation left with the image. You don't know the person who drew it. What inferences might you make based on the image? (Remember – you didn't draw it! You're a random future person!)

Want to make it more interesting? Switch your drawing with a shoulder partner. Don't ask them about their drawing, and don't tell them about yours. Just write two or three educated guesses you have about what you think their image represents. When you get your drawing back, see what inferences were made.