

Warm-up: The Battle of the Alamo Extension

Unit 5: The Texas Revolution

Name:

Date:

Period:

Directions: Imagine you were at the Alamo during the thirteen-day siege before the battle. Complete the graphic organizer below from the point of view of someone inside the Alamo.

I'm not sure what day it is, I think it's March 2, 1836, and I'm here at the Alamo. This experience has been really difficult! I want to write down what has been going on and my thoughts about it all, so here goes:

Here is a drawing I made about my time here in the Alamo:

Warm-up: The Battle of the Alamo Extension

Unit 5: The Texas Revolution

Name:

Date:

Period:

Directions: Imagine you were at the Alamo during the thirteen-day siege before the battle. Complete the graphic organizer below from the point of view of someone inside the Alamo.

I'm not sure what day it is, I think it's March 2, 1836, and I'm here at the Alamo. This experience has been really difficult! I want to write down what has been going on and my thoughts about it all, so here goes:

Here is a drawing I made about my time here in the Alamo:

The Battle of the Alamo Extension Exit Ticket

The Telegraph and Texas Register newspaper printed an article on March 24, 1836, about the Battle of the Alamo. Read the excerpt from the article below and answer the question that follows.

"We envy not the feelings of the victors, for they must have been bitter and galling; not proud ones. Who would not be rather one of the Alamo heroes, than of the living of its merciless victors? Spirits of the mighty, though fallen! honours and rest are with ye: the spark of immortality which animated your forms, shall brighten into a flame, and Texas, the whole world, shall hail ye like demi-gods of old, as founders of new actions, and as patterns for imitation!"

1. Is this article expressions mostly facts or opinions? Give evidence to support your answer.

The Battle of the Alamo Extension Exit Ticket

The Telegraph and Texas Register newspaper printed an article on March 24, 1836, about the Battle of the Alamo. Read the excerpt from the article below and answer the question that follows.

"We envy not the feelings of the victors, for they must have been bitter and galling; not proud ones. Who would not be rather one of the Alamo heroes, than of the living of its merciless victors? Spirits of the mighty, though fallen! honours and rest are with ye: the spark of immortality which animated your forms, shall brighten into a flame, and Texas, the whole world, shall hail ye like demi-gods of old, as founders of new actions, and as patterns for imitation!"

1. Is this article expressions mostly facts or opinions? Give evidence to support your answer.