Unit 5: The Texas Revolution

Name: Date: Period:

Primary Source #1: The Arrest of Lorenzo de Zavala

In August of 1835, two months before the Battle of Gonzales, Santa Anna's centralist troops in Texas set out to arrest Lorenzo de Zavala. Zavala had worked in the federalist government but resigned when Santa Anna and the centralists took control. After his resignation, he moved to Texas.

The excerpt below was written by an Anglo colonist named John W. Smith. Smith translated General Cos' arrest warrant. In this portion of the excerpt, Smith is giving his own opinion about the order for arrest.

"[Zavala] wrote a very spirited letter to the Dictator, in which he told him that "formerly he had owed his success in arms to the justice of his cause, but now his cause was a bad one, liberal principles would put him down." This is the only charge which they can prefer against [Zavala], is this sufficient to cause the march of cavalry to his arrest? No, it is not for that purpose they intend to come, it is for the purpose of subjecting us to the new form of government, we have only to look at the intrigues which were used to subdue Zacatecas, to convince us that we have nothing to expect from them. Let Texas be united and take a firm stand and she has nothing to fear.	Dictator: An all-powerful leader. Liberal principles: Ideas like federalism and individual rights Cavalry: A branch of military on horseback. Subjecting: Forcing people to experience something Intrigues: Secret and/or negative actions Subdue: To put down or control

Primary Source #3: “A Lady of Texas”

The following excerpt is from an article in the Telegraph and Texas Register from February 27, 1836. It was submitted anonymously by a Texas woman who referred to herself simply as “A Lady of Texas.”

“...at this important crisis, the ladies of Texas can render some service to their threatened country, by making up clothing for her army... I am sure there can, in this way, be clothes made for a thousand men, which, at the lowest prices, would save the state several thousand dollars... During the last war between the United States and Great Britain, when the venerable Shelby was governor of Kentucky, the ladies of that state supplied the Kentucky troops with clothing which did not cost the government one cent. And why cannot the ladies of Texas do the same? Have we not as much patriotism as our mothers and grandmothers?” - Telegraph and Texas Register, Saturday, February 27, 1836 The Portal to Texas History	Crisis: A time of great difficulty, trouble, or danger Render: Give or provide War between the United States and Great Britain: The American Revolution Venerable: Respectable
